the rogues. In the end the policeman is beautifully hoaxed. Very amusing indeed and creates great laughter. 325 ft., $35.75

THE POET'S BID FOR FAME

The ecstatic poet calls at the office of the newspaper to present his inspiration, is met rudely by the editor and his office-boy. He harangues a crowd in the street, is run into the padded cell. Finally goes on to the stage to recite. He is not favourably received. Intensely funny, and grand quality. 305 ft., $33.55

HER FIRST PANCAKE

The young Wife's first essay to make a Pancake with assistance of General Servant. Several attempts are made; the Pancake first goes on the floor, then up the chimney. In the evening the Husband eats one—has severe paroxysms. The Doctor is called, and a very amusing finale winds up this genuinely funny film. 310 ft., $34.10

PAPA'S LETTER

A pathetic story of the little girl who wants to rejoin her dead father. She asks her mother to put a stamp on her and post her to Heaven. The little girl goes out, unfortunately gets run over, is killed, and fulfills her mission. The letter is posted. Very beautiful quality. 275 ft., $30.25

FATHEP'S WASHING DAY

The old man interferes generally in the laundry, and to get rid of him is sent out to deliver the washing. After frequently falling over people and several amusing mishaps, he is taken home by the police. 295 ft., $32.45

A LITTLE BIT OF STRING

Youngsters' mischief with a little piece of string. A milkman, bootblack, etc., all become victims. Original titling, "With a Piece of String." 250 ft., $27.50

S. LUBIN

LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF

Life Motion Picture Machines and Films

21-23 South Eighth Street, PHILADELPHIA PA.

COPYRIGHT 1907

And the Dog Came Back

A Clever and Laughable Film

S. LUBIN

LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF

FILMS, SLIDES, STEREOPTICON AND LIFE MOTION PICTURE MACHINES

21-23 South Eighth St., Philadelphia, Pa., U. S. A.

AND THE DOG CAME BACK

COPYRIGHT 1907 S. LUBIN

LENGTH, 600 FEET - - - PRICE, $66.00

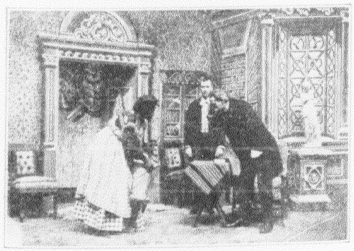
While Chung Lung, the Washee-washee is delivering his goods, a dog takes hold of his trousers, tearing the same in pieces. While complaining to the proprietor of the dog, he is told to take the dog and kill him.

The Chinaman and the butler are going to kill the dog. He is tied to a tree and shot by the butler. The butler then goes home and tells his master how he killed the dog, but hardly had he finished when the dog came back.

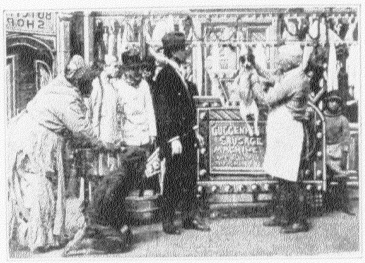
A candy man on the street is next attacked by the dog, who seems to have a special liking for men's trousers. When the peddler comes in for complaint, he too is told to take and kill the dog.

The butler and peddler are going to kill the dog. They put a rope around his neck and pull him up a tree. They then depart leaving the poor dog to his fate. The butler returning home describes to his master how he killed the dog this time. Again the dog came back before the butler had finished.

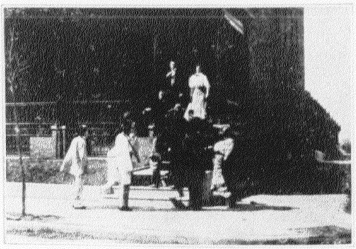
Now the dog attacks a colored woman. It is funny indeed to see the struggle between the big fat wench and tiny little dog. She too comes in for a complaint and is advised to kill the dog. The colored woman and the butler put the dog in a sack, fill it with stones and throw it in the water. The butler then goes home and reports to his master how he killed the dog, but hardly had he finished when the dog sits on his master's lap.



Next, two little boys are attacked by the dog, and again it is the trousers' seat that suffers mostly. The mother of the boy, when complaining, is advised to take the dog and kill him.



The butler, together with all the sufferers, go to the butcher to have the dog made into mince meat. The butcher lays the dog upon the block and severs the head with one stroke of a big axe. He then puts the body in a sausage machine and makes Wiener-Wurscht out of the dog. The butler then goes home and reports to his master that the dog is killed, this time for good, but hardly had he finished when the dog came back.



The sufferers not knowing that the dog has come back, came to get some compensation for their torn clothes. Just then a little boy is begging for the dog. The master, glad to get rid of the dog, presents him to the little boy.

LENGTH, 600 FEET - - PRICE $66.00

COPYRIGHT 1907 S. LUBIN

COPYRIGHT 1907

THE NEW

APPRENTICE

S. LUBIN

LARGEST MANUFACTURER OF

FILMS, SLIDES, STEREOPTICON AND LIFE MOTION PICTURE MACHINES

19-21 SOUTH EIGHTH STREET,
PHILADELPHIA, PA., U. S. A.

1907